ROAD EATER—Grinding the top one-inch layer of asphalt off the westbound lanes of I-10 Tuesday just east of the National Space Technology Laboratories exit is one of two road planers owned by Ralph Rogers, Inc. of Bloomington, Ind. which is working under contract with Butts and Billingsly Asphalt Paving of Childersburg, Ala. to recycle the material in repaving all four lanes from the exit to the Jourdan River twin bridges near Diamondhead. Tommy Mitchell of Vincennes, Ind. operates the planer which is also filling a dump truck with the recyclable material. Each machine strips one-half a lane width. The recycled material will provide about 80 percent of the new asphalt in the $2 million resurfacing project. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Delisle restaurant burns down

A Harrison County restaurant burned early Wednesday morning, according to the Delisle Volunteer Fire Department.

The Pass Christian Fire Department received a call between 2:30 and 3 a.m. reporting the fire at the Turnip Patch Restaurant on Vidalia Road, north of Firetower Road. John Basco, paid fireman with the Delisle department said.

He said units from the Delisle, Cuevas and Lizana volunteer departments responded and found the building completely destroyed by the fire.

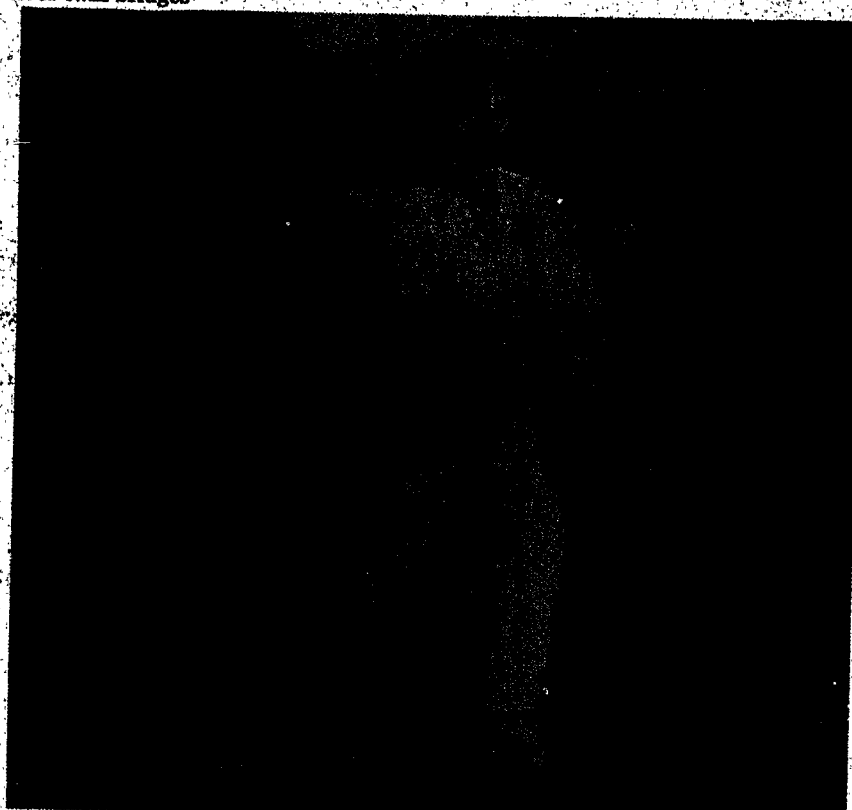

The building, which was vacant at the time of the fire, was owned by two brothers, Carl and Junior Necaise of Pass Christian.

Basco said about $30,000 of video game machines are reported to have been destroyed in the fire.

An estimate on the worth of the building and other contents had not been completed.

The cause of the fire has not been determined and the state fire marshal has been called to investigate.

Liquor ad court ruling includes unusual note

A federal appeals court ruled Friday that Mississippi's law banning liquor advertising is unconstitutional.

But at the same time the court backed up and ordered a full scale rehearing, an Associated Press report states.

Joan Perkins, a deputy court clerk stated, "I really don't know what happened but they did put them en banc. That means the opinions are vacated. I don't know when the en banc will be set."

She explained en banc calls for a rehearing before all 13 judges of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals instead of the usual three-judge panel.

The turnaround was explained in a footnote, which reported that since this ruling conflicts with one in another circuit, the opinion was first circulated to all the other 5th circuit judges and the majority of them voted for en banc treatment.

The footnote did not explain the conflict.

Mississippi Attorney General Bill Allan said after the second order, "You are always happy when you appear to lose something and then get another shot at it. With the full court wanting to look at this, there must have been some judges concerned about the three-judge panel being wrong."

Allan reported he understood the full court called for briefs to be filed in April and May and "oral arguments sometime in June."

Industry representatives were saddened by the court's turnaround.

"We're terribly disappointed at this development," said Margie Tyler, executive director of the Mississippi Broadcasters Association. "However, we are confident the ultimate decision will be in our favor."

The broadcasters' group, along with advertising firms, challenged the liquor advertising ban on constitutional grounds.

John Emmerich, editor and publisher of the Greenwood Commonwealth said, "It is a disservice to the people who buy liquor. They do not have the benefit of price advertising."

Citizen committee to seek new jail feasibility study

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Citizens Jail Committee will request a feasibility study be made on construction of a new detention facility.

The committee decided at its first meeting Monday night to present the study recommendation to the next meeting of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors March 21.

Also at the Monday committee meeting, Terry Feeney was elected chairman; Jan Brameyer, vice-chairman; and Lana Noonan, secretary.

All governmental entities, including county and cities were represented at the meeting.

Special guest J. Ruble Griffin, Circuit Court Judge, a resident of Bay St. Louis, addressed the group about how recent growth in the county has caused a need for a new facility.

Walter Gex, attorney for the Hancock County board of supervisors said, "The board of supervisors accepted the direction of the last Grand Jury in appointing this representative committee, and I am happy each of you have accepted the task."

"As you know the jail is old and there is a need for a feasibility study for a new detention center, but there are many questions which have to be answered," Gex added.

Gex continued, "In Poplarville there is a new jail, yet it is unoccupied because there is no money to operate the facility, so much research has to be done. There will be a need for a strong cooperation between the county and two cities in order to be successful."

Feeney stated after the meeting, "I am glad to accept the chairmanship and am very happy with the enthusiasm of committee members."

Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson commented, "I am sure we can make arrangements for groups of citizens to tour the jail," when the matter was suggested.

Jeffrey Taylor, a representative of the Gulf Regional Planning Committee, reported that he will make available to all committee members previous information which has been gathered in regards to the jail. He added, "Gulf Regional will do everything it can in helping the jail committee complete its task."

Members of the committee include Albert Necaise, district attorney; John Genin, county prosecutor; Sam Periniaro, supervisor, District Four; James Travica, supervisor, District Five; and Walter Gex, board of supervisors attorney.

Other members are Fred Wagner, local architect; Ronald Peterson, Hancock sheriff; and Jeffrey Taylor, Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

Appointed by the board of supervisors are Faye Lusich and Alvin Ladner Jr., District One; Mrs. Elmo (Mary) Treat and Ola Jean Moran, District Two; Douglas Necaise and Vic Frankiewicz Jr., District Three; Roger James and Jerry Heitzmann, District Four; and Geraldine Lang, Pamela Lee Metzler, and Herbert Bilbo, District Five.

Bay St. Louis committee members are Douglas Williams, chief of police, and Eddie Favre, city clerk.

Donald Dorn, chief of police, and Bob Hubbard, alderman, are Waveland's representatives.

Those selected by the sheriff are Linda Dupuis, Jan Brameyer, Lana Noonan, and Terry Feeney.

County employees to bear burden of insurance hike

By BREARD SNELLINGS

County employees will have to start paying some of their own monthly life and liability insurance premiums if they want to stay on the Hancock County insurance program.

Chancery Court Clerk E. Michael Necaise told the County Board of Supervisors Monday that Washington National Insurance, which is handling group insurance for all county employees, will raise their rates on April 1.

"Insurance rates will be going up 80 percent," said Necaise, who recommended the board stay with Washington National since it was the best insurance program they had found.

The board then moved to retain the same insurance company.

County employees will have a choice of staying with the company or getting their insurance elsewhere at their own expense.

The board also moved to change from a $100 deductible to $200 deductible and from 70-30 to 80-20 percent payment up to $2,000 per individual.

Necaise explained that rates will go up in April by $12 per month for individuals, and an additional $20 per month for county employees with family coverage.

"The county is presently paying Washington National all of the $48 per month premium for individual coverage and $89 per month for family coverage," said Necaise.

The $12 and $20 per month raise in premiums will be paid by the employee.

Also, the board approved $3,500 of work by Advanced Developments, Inc. on cost estimates for planned Lear jet hangar at Stennis International Airport, and $2,000 for ADI for investigative work on airport taxiway repairs.

Also, the board approved a fee of $5,215 to ADI for airport apron repair work, and rejected bids for a Cummings 220 diesel locomotive engine for the Port Bienville Short Line, since those engines no longer in production and parts difficult to obtain.

Buddy Klein, representing himself, told the board that Pearl River Junior College is not getting its share of athletes from county schools, and the board moved to write a letter to President Marvin White of PRC telling him of the problem with a lack of recruiting in this area.

Linda Myshall from Ron Murray Consultants told the board that federal community development grants would have to be advertised for, and that her office needed to hire a person to prepare applications and advertise for them.

Eve McDonald of the Hancock County Senior Citizens Program said that a county human resources agency was needed, and pointed out that Biloxi was starting one, and that Gulfport already had one in Harrison County.

The board moved to appoint the required five-person board, including a salaried director for the resources agency, and would do so at a later time.

Also, the board moved to purchase a minibus for use by the senior citizens program, since the present bus has 71,000 miles on it and is difficult to operate. The bus will be purchased on state bids.

County Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin told the board two of the seven persons applying for federal emergency housing due to the January 20 storm damage, have been rejected.

The board then moved to sign lease agreements for the five people who will be housed in temporary trailers.

Also, a bid of $1,075 for a county dragline was accepted from Robert Mitchell, and a bid of $15,853 for a dump truck was accepted from Charlie Henderson Ford.

Also, the board moved to write a letter to NASA officials complaining that Hancock County had fewer employees at NASA than any other surrounding county or parish.

Jim Head, director of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, then told the board that buses could be purchased from the Metropolitan Coast Transit Authority by an 80-20 percent $258,000 Urban Mass Transit Authority Grant, of which the county share is $8,000.

Head said the buses could be used in transporting elderly and handicapped people in the county and take some of the burden off the South Mississippi Planning and Development Commission. Also, maps of the locations of these people could be made.

Cadet wharf operator seeking jetty extension

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Bayou Caddy Fisheries is seeking a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers permit to extend a riprap jetty to protect a proposed wharf addition at the mouth of Bayou Cadet.

The company is seeking permission to extend the 12-foot-wide jetty about 100 feet into the Mississippi Sound at the bayou's mouth based on a public notice recently issued by the Corps' Mobile, Ala. office.

Joe E. Cure Jr. of the Cadet company applied for the permit to place 270-cubic-yards of the material to form the jetty, the notice lists.

Cure was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

The notice states a preliminary Corps assessment of the project found "it is not expected to have a significant effect upon the quality of the human environment."

The Corps has previously approved the pier construction, the notice includes. Fishermen utilize the existing wharf to dock and unload their vessels.

The marina was recently damaged heavily by a freak winter storm which flooded the area and wrecked many commercial fishing boats.

Another recently issued Corps notice lists a New Orleans man is seeking a permit in Jourdan River Shores to build an access road off Ponchartraine Street to his Bayou Talla home site.

Another Corps report states Dr. Paul A. Riehl and Larry Lind, a neighboring landowner, both filled designated wetland areas without proper permits.

Riehl is now seeking an "after-the-fact" permit allowing the wetland filling consisting of 200-cubic-yards of red clay in a 20-foot by 52-foot area to provide an access to the house site, the Corps notice reports.

The New Orleans man is also seeking approval of a constructed bulkhead and adjoining dock, the notice states.

However, the notice also states a preliminary assessment indicates the completed work will not have a significant effect upon the environment.

Help Your Heart

Exercise's Effect On Blood Fat

There's good news and bad news for men who run long distances or get other types of heavy exercise.

First, the good news: Exercising regularly and vigorously increases a man's ability to break down and clear fat from his plasma (the cell-free liquid portion of uncoagulated blood), said Josef R. Patsch, M.D., research associate professor of medicine at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. Exercise raises the blood's level of the fat-breakdown product called HDL<sub>2</sub>, which may protect against coronary heart disease.

The bad news is that if a runner stops running for as little as three weeks, his blood plasma may become "milky" with fat after each meal, his HDL<sub>2</sub> level may decline and his risk of heart disease may increase, Dr. Patsch reported at a recent American Heart Association meeting.

His results suggest that men should stay physically active. If they quit working out, this particular benefit quickly disappears. "Exercise should not be used as a medication taken only when you feel you need it," he said.

"Exercise and adherence to a prudent diet should be lifelong habits."

What about women? Premenopausal women have HDL<sub>2</sub> levels roughly three times higher than men, according to studies by other scientists. Since women already have the protection high HDL<sub>2</sub> levels provide, they may not experience the coronary benefits of exercise. However, after menopause HDL<sub>2</sub> levels decrease and the risk of heart disease quickly rises. Dr. Patsch said it's good that young women are exercising, because it's Josef R. Patsch, M.D., difficult to start after menopause, when it may help them most.

An accomplished Alpine skier, Dr. Patsch is a native of Vienna, Austria, and attended medical school in Innsbruck, site of the 1964 and 1976 Winter Olympics. When he moved to Houston in 1975, he had to switch sports. He says he now runs about 20 miles and plays tennis about six hours every week, but admits that "it's hard to keep up" such a program because he's so busy.

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Mobile District Office renderings of proposed Henderson Point marina permeable breakwater

Henderson marina unusual

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The developer of a proposed Henderson Point marina reports boats at the facility will be protected from wave action by an unusually designed timber breakwater.

Phillip Briant of Bay St. Louis, president of Paradise Marine, Inc., of Gulfport, says the facility, to be located offshore from Henderson Point and just north of the Bay of St. Louis railroad bridge, will utilize a breakwater which will not block the tide's ebb and flow.

The breakwater will be built of split piling bolted horizontally and spaced evenly apart from above to below the average water line along the perimeter pier's supporting pilings, Briant explains.

Breakwater pilings will consist of two parallel but offset runs along the perimeter piers with the inside set blocking waves moving through openings in the first barrier, he says.

Briant reports the marina will be the first coastal facility to utilize the permeable breakwater design.

Engineering studies show the concept will work," he said. In addition, the breakwater will allow a natural cleansing effect resulting from water flow through the facility," he states.

The company president reports state agencies are interested in utilizing the marina design as a model for other similar facilities and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is receptive to the idea since the proposal allows an unrestricted tidal flow.

Briant also reveals the pier walkways will be relatively close to the water to improve hurricane resistance. He feels the piers have a better chance of surviving if hurricane flood waters cover them.

He says construction of the two breakwaters will hopefully begin April 1 if Corps approval is secured.

The piers will extend from shore about 150 feet out into the bay where construction of the first large permanent slips along the northern barrier for 50-60-foot boats will begin, Briant reveals.

About 40 of these slips will be custom constructed to fit boat-owner needs and an additional 60 slips will be built along finger piers extending from the southern breakwater for 25-30-foot vessels, Briant reports.

Briant notes he first applied for a Corps permit to build 124 slips, but the government agency will not allow him to dredge close to shore which would allow all spaces.

The company president confirmed sewage disposal hookups will serve each slip, dry boat storage will be provided nearby onshore and a harbor-master will be on duty around the clock.

He hopes to complete the entire project in June in time for the summer boating season if the Corps receives no objections.

Briant adds he has received complaints regarding his project from nearby weekenders' who own summer homes nearby.

National Wildlife Week March 20-26

As an American citizen, you are a part owner of 740 million acres of this country's public lands—approximately one-third of the United States.

This year, National Wildlife Week will focus on the importance of these public lands. "This Is Your Land—Public Lands Belong To All Of Us" is the theme for Wildlife Week, scheduled for March 20-26. It is the 46th such annual educational effort by the National Wildlife Federation.

Country singer Loretta Lynn is 1983's Wildlife Week Chairperson. She has donated time to making radio and television public service announcements, singing Woody Guthrie's song, "This Land Is Your Land," and talking about the need for protecting the public estate.

Each year, hundreds of thousands of school children learn about Wildlife Week with information provided in specially prepared education kits, and millions more learn about it from broadcast announcements and media attention to the conservation theme.

By focusing on public lands, this year's Wildlife Week promotes an understanding of the importance of public lands to the nation's wildlife, and the enjoyment these lands provide for hunters, hikers, boaters, campers and outdoor enthusiasts.

The week is also a time to rekindle the American desire to learn about the history and land policies that established the public domain, and to gain an awareness of the complexity of balancing the competing needs on public lands.

"Today, America's growing population and demand for limited natural resources have greatly increased the need to manage our public lands wisely," said Jay D. Hair, Executive Vice President of the National Wildlife Federation. "Everyone who is concerned about our public lands—from the forests to the parks and wildlife refuges—can help decide how our public resources can be utilized without sacrificing conservation principles."

Some facts about public land:

—The National Park Service was established in 1916 and now manages 74 million acres of land.

—Public lands are rich in fossil fuels, timber and minerals.

Quotables by CUEVAS

We have noted in recent weeks several times when the Bay St. Louis Bridge would be open delaying traffic.

We called William Zimmerman, bridge foreman on Wednesday and inquired as to what was happening.

Zimmerman said one of the reasons for the problems was that the entire structure was being re-wired and the majority of the work is under the structure.

He added that sometimes after a new section has been installed, the bridge is opened so it can be checked out and sometimes a wire has to be found to make a connection. The contractor has until August to complete the task.

A problem of the bridge being open does effect Mobile Medic Ambulance Service.

One thing we have noted in a recent trip at night across the bridge was that all of the lights were working and it sure is a nice drive.

We have noted many gardeners planting vegetables in recent weeks. One thing we have also noted is the fact that the pecan trees have not started to bud as yet.

Many of the oldtimers say frost is not over until the pecan trees start budding. We do hope the frosts are over for this season.

We have been waiting for our ground to dry a bit more so we can get the tiller out to plant a few tomato and pepper plants. The forecasts for the next few days do not look to promising.

It was good to see how many members of the Hancock County Jail Committee attended their first meeting on Monday night.

We do have a serious problem with our jail, as it is old and apparently needs replacing.

We hope everyone will give very serious consideration to the jail situation and become informed on the matter.

A good suggestion would be to ask our sheriff for a tour of the current facility.

It was constructed for some 15 persons and last Sunday morning there were some 40 lodged in the facility.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong.
Trent Lott

HOW IMPORTANT IS CENTRAL AMERICA? BY CONGRESSMAN TRENT LOTT

5th District—Mississippi

The nations of Central America, as the President pointed out the other day, are among our closest neighbors.

They are "too close and the strategic stakes are too high for us to ignore the danger of governments seizing power there with ideological and military ties to the Soviet Union," he said in a major speech I had the pleasure to attend.

Just how important are the nations of Central America to the security and prosperity of the United States? Very important, and for a number of reasons.

For example, Central America is the fourth largest market in the world for U.S. goods such as transportation equipment, farm and industrial machinery and manufactured goods. An estimated one-half of the foreign oil imported by the U.S. moves through the Panama Canal, as do other imported products.

I suggested in a column like this one last year that a country's borders can separate that country from its neighbors, or the borders can be viewed as the meeting points of common interests. In Central America and on through Mexico, I think the U.S. has common interests that need protecting and securing.

Much of the discussion in Washington lately about Central America has been prompted by the President's call for an additional $50 million in emergency assistance for El Salvador, a country torn by guerrilla violence.

These guerrilla fighters are trained and inspired by Cuban-Soviet support, according to reports.

Many experts feel that the Communist-inspired insurgents have targeted El Salvador because they consider it the key to domination of Central America. Its location, population density and economic subculture seem to make it an attractive target.

Many in Congress feel we must continue to aid El Salvador, or run the risk of having the country fall into the Cuban-Soviet orbit, perhaps to be soon followed by Honduras and Guatemala. We still believe in the basic democratic ideals of the people of El Salvador and the proposal is to provide necessary assistance so they can withstand the guerrilla assaults.

Already, Nicaragua has become a base for the guerrilla activity into El Salvador and the pressure is growing on the Salvador government.

Underpinning our desire for democracy to succeed in Central America is a direct national security interest: The U.S. must be able to resupply Western Europe in case of an emergency. In that connection, the Panama Canal and the Caribbean Sea are especially important.

Whether the additional assistance sought for El Salvador will be approved remains to be seen. But, I, for one, think it is time we focused the spotlight on the importance of Central America to our country and its future.

DISCUSSING JAIL PROBLEMS—Walter Gex, left, attorney for the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, explains the conditions at the Hancock County Jail to members of the Jail Committee named after repeated recommendations of Hancock County Grand Jurors. The committee is composed of 27 members from Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County. A thorough study is to be made of the jail and the group will bring a recommendation to the next meeting of the Hancock County Supervisors that a feasibility study be made on construction of a new jail. A new detention center for Hancock County has been discussed for many years and the formation of the jail committee, we feel, is start in the right direction. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Taxpayers subsidizing Hancock North Central principals almost $6,000 each annually for housing

March 16, 1983
Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

The Hancock County School District between the years 1978-1980 spent a grand total of $39,830 on remodeling the two principals' homes at Hancock North Central and just recently the Hancock County School Board voted 4-1 to spend another $48,000 to rebuild the principal's home that just recently burned down.

I tend to wonder if these school officials have given enough the thought to this particular situation.

Is this what's best for the school children of Hancock County and is this what the majority of the taxpayers who put these elected officials in office want?

I agree, that for security reasons, we need a principal's home on the campus of Hancock North Central since it is located in a rural area.

However, we have one house located on campus that the assistant principal is now occupying.

We are not a rich county and I do not feel that taxpayer's money should be spent supplying a principal and an assistant principal with free housing, electricity, and phone as we are now doing.

On a yearly average it costs the taxpayer approximately the following amounts to maintain both houses: electricity, $5,000; phone bills, $720; insurance, $344; which is an annual total of $6,064 excluding the upkeep on these two houses.

It is now costing the taxpayers $250 a month to rent a trailer for Mr. Hillman, the principal at Hancock; therefore, rental fees alone for two houses should have been bringing into the school system at least $6,000 annually.

Today very few school systems in the state of Mississippi provide housing for principals.

Mr. Hillman is paid $28,000 yearly. With salaries such as these I do not feel it is the taxpayer's responsibility nor should tax dollars pay for phones, electricity, and etc.

With today's economy, I feel that each individual should carry his own load rather than put this unnecessary burden on the taxpayers.

Also, we have four other principals on our school system and if we supply two principals with free housing, electricity, and phones then why don't we do the same for the other four principals?

In reality, we are paying each of the two principals approximately $5,860 more a year than we are paying the other four principals.

Is this fair? If so, to whom? The taxpayers, the other four principals?

Our school board seems to overlook the fact that we have another school, Charles B. Murphy, that is located in a rural area.

If insurance money is spent on another house why put two houses on the campus of Hancock North Central?

We have a house located on the school campus of Gulfview School for security reasons. If we are going to be fair to all concerned why not put a house at Charles B. Murphy?

I feel that tax dollars should go toward the education of our children and since we are in dire need of classrooms that should be top priority rather than putting $48,000 back into a second house at Hancock North Central which will continuously cost the taxpayers money.

In concluding, I'd like to thank the superintendent, Terry Randolph; and board member, Johnny Banks, for not supporting this action taken by the school board to rebuild this house.

Hoping for a reconsideration

Former big-city resident makes urgent plea for salvation of Bay-Waveland trees

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

I was glad to see on the editorial page of the March 10 Echo that the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Cleanup and Beautification Committee is once again reminding us that "Litter is always ugly."

And the photograph of the illegal dumping of US-90 may help curtail such irresponsible vandalism.

There is, however, another kind of destruction taking place every day along US-90; apparently with the approval of both the city planners and the Chamber of Commerce.

I am referring to the practice of developers going in with bulldozers and leveling every single tree on a building site to make way for another parking lot, fast food restaurant, or shopping center.

Don't misunderstand me, I, too, enjoy the convenience and variety such new businesses bring to our community. And we badly need the jobs they provide.

But are we so desperate for this kind of "progress" that we are willing to ignore the long-term consequences of such mutilation?

I recently noted the work going on across from Market Town Shopping Center (a perfect example of the point I am making, by the way) and on a very pretty lot, too.

I thought "What a nice setting for a shop." Alas, but not for long—a few days later the four beautiful, big pecan trees lay uprooted and dead, awaiting the chain saw.

I simply do not understand the thinking behind such indiscriminate wanton destruction. They co-exist harmoniously wherever they are allowed to by man or nature.

There are shopping centers in Gulfport and Biloxi where trees have been left to grow in the parking areas, and the shade they provide on our hot summer days is a real incentive to anyone looking for a place to shop.

I have heard the excuse that it is just easier and less time consuming to bulldoze everything when clearing land. Unless bulldozer operators are making an outrageous amount of money per hour, which I am assured is not the case, the added cost for having land cleared with some forethought would be an investment that would quickly pay off.

We have a real advantage in the fact that our town is being developed 20 to 30 years after the big cities made all their planning mistakes. We are in the enviable position of being able to make a fresh start backed by the knowledge they acquired the hard way.

The new shopping centers in more progressive parts of the U.S. are doing extensive landscaping, and not just because it is good for the whole community environment, but because people spend more money, it seems, when they can rest their eyes on shades of green, growing things!

I am very afraid that in our frenzy for commercial development (which is inevitable at any rate according to national surveys) we are going to destroy that very thing which makes this such an attractive area of the country: our abundant natural resources, of which trees are a very big part.

According to "The Great American Forests" by Rutherford Platt, one small apple tree releases four gallons of water an hour into the atmosphere. This is water it takes from the ground and cools in its own circulatory system.

Instead of adding to the humidity, this exchange of water from ground to air has the effect of rapid evaporation which makes the air around and under the tree markedly cooler.

According to Platt, it is impossible to estimate how many gallons of water an hour are released by a full grown Elm tree, for example, but it is thought to be an impressive figure.

This being the case, and the Gulf Coast having a reputation for very hot summers, we should do all we can to encourage the illusion and the reality of cooler temperatures in shopping areas along US-90.

Trees are an almost free gift from God and nature which can help us enormously in this direction if we but have the good sense to let them live.

Finally, I would like to make what I hope will be an education analogy: I remember being a small child in Metairie, La. in the late 1950s.

Veterans Memorial Highway and the land around it was just being developed, and it was not unlike our present stretch of US-90: very wooded and untouched for the most part.

I would like to suggest that anyone involved with city planning in Bay St. Louis/Waveland, and most especially those persons responsible for attracting new businesses to our area, take a trip to the city someday soon and drive down Veterans Highway for a few miles.

What you will see today is a nightmare of plastic and neon and asphalt—which is indistinguishable from such strips of unplanned development in big cities everywhere.

Many, many of the people who are coming over here to buy homes and pay taxes are trying to escape just that kind of ugliness.

Will Bay St. Louis/Waveland offer them that chance? And for how long?

If you do take that trip to New Orleans, be sure and drive uptown to the university section around Audubon Park. You will be looking at some of the most expensive property in the United States per square foot.

Be sure and notice your first impression of these exclusive streets and avenues.

What do you see? Trees! Huge, magnificent trees—and many, many, more on their way to becoming so.

The very same varieties of trees that flourish along US-90.

Then, on your way home, look at all the beauty that is still yours to protect. Remember what you have seen in New Orleans and Metairie. And ask yourself what direction you want Bay St. Louis/Waveland to go in.

This excursion into your own future shouldn't take more than half a day. But what you could learn might save us all from a future it would take half a century to correct. Please! Time is running out.

Sincerely,
Patricia Kelly-Matthews
Bay St. Louis

DEBATING THE ISSUES OF 1983

The year is unfolding as an important one for the people of Mississippi. There is new hope for improvements in the economy as the nation pulls itself out of the recession.

On the home front, 1983 will be a pivotal year. This year state voters will elect public officials to fill jobs from the governor's office on down to county constable.

The Mississippi Economic Council has selected "Issues '83" as the theme for its Annual Membership Meeting, which is scheduled for April 7 in Jackson. Major issues facing the nation and the state will be discussed in detail by people who help shape them.

On the national front, Ted Koppel, veteran broadcast journalist, will talk to MEC members about the world as he sees it from his vantage point as anchor of a New York-based nightly television news program. He will be the luncheon speaker.

Closer to home, the growing list of candidates for Mississippi governor will appear to discuss major issues in this year's elections. A traditional event at the Council's meetings, the candidates will be interviewed by a panel of the state's leading journalists.

Education will also play a major part of this year's annual meeting. By presenting discussions on these and other important issues, the Council believes that Mississippians will be better informed about the events which shape our daily lives.

Carbon monoxide poisonings end in multiple deaths

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued an alert to citizens, local and state officials, inspectors and fire marshals, concerning the large number of accidental deaths from carbon monoxide poisoning which occur every year.

Nearly 300 people die unnecessarily from carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning, a majority because of improperly vented gas appliances.

Most of these deaths occur in the winter months during the peak heating season.

The deaths are associated with gas furnaces, ovens and ranges, and particularly space heaters, which alone cause approximately 170 deaths each year.

Approximately 40 of these deaths are associated with unvented gas space heaters; that is, heaters which do not need to be vented to the outside of the house.

The commission now requires that these unvented-type gas space heaters be equipped with a mandatory safety device designed to prevent CO poisonings.

By far, however, most of the deaths — approximately 130 each year — are associated with vented-type gas space heaters; i.e., heaters which must be vented to the outside of the house. The commission data show that the primary causes of these incidents are:

1. Improper installations of the flue (chimney) venting system.
2. No venting system.
3. Clogged or obstructed vents.

The American National Standards Institute is revising its voluntary standard for vented-type space heaters to prevent deaths from these causes in the future.

The standard will require a temperature-sensitive detector, such as a 'spill switch,' which detects hot exhaust gases caused by inadequate venting and turns off the heaters.

The revised standard should become effective in approximately one year and heaters with 'spill switches' will be available at small increases in price.

Unfortunately, this device will not take care of vented-type heaters already installed or used heaters which are re-installed.

Many of the incidents occur with older (or re-installed) heaters.

Two recent tragedies illustrate the potential danger of carbon monoxide poisonings. In these cases, as in most such tragic accidents, multiple deaths... often all members of the household... occurred.

On January 28, 1983, in Prichard, Alabama, eight persons, including an infant and six other children, died, victims of CO generated by a natural gas space heater which was not vented to the outside.

The heater was manufactured to be vented and venting was essential to its proper operation.

A space heater, which is supposed to be vented and is not, will release combustion products containing dangerous quantities of CO, a poisonous (non-irritating) gas, into the room. Since CO is odorless, the victims may not be aware of the danger and may become unconscious without any warning.

In this case, two members of the household had left two or three hours before the victims were found and they had not noticed any problem.

Another incident occurred on December 21, 1982, in Barnwell, S.C., where five teenagers died and another was seriously injured from CO poisoning from two liquefied petroleum (LP) gas-fired space heaters with inadequate and improper venting in a hunting clubhouse.

These heaters were vented to the outside, but the chimney was not high enough to allow adequate venting of the combustion gases.

The National Fire Protection Association code, which was legally required in Barnwell, requires at least a five-foot vertical chimney. These installations had only a few inches at most.

The new heaters were not defective in themselves when the accident occurred, but the improper venting prevented them from operating safely.

The commission feels total public awareness is the only way to correct existing and future problems for currently installed heaters.

Consumers must be aware of and observe the following safety rules if they have or plan to install a vented-type space heater:

1. Never use a vented-type heater without proper venting and flue (chimney).
2. Follow manufacturer's recommendations for the proper size heater and for its installation, maintenance and use. Have it professionally installed, if possible.
3. Have your heater installation checked by the local fire marshal, building inspector, or gas company before lighting.
4. Never use a heater that is in disrepair. Always keep your heater in proper operating condition.
5. Turn off the heater if the burner flame looks strange, i.e., yellow flames, unsteady flames, or smoky flames.
6. Turn off the heater, ventilate the room and get into the fresh air if you feel other than normal, i.e., headache, nausea, fuzzy vision — remember CO does not have an odor and you may become unconscious before you realize there is a problem.
7. Make sure the venting system is open — a blocked vent can cause your space heater to exhaust CO into your living space.
8. Never sleep in a room where a gas heater is burning.
9. Do not operate a gas heater in a completely 'tight' room. The heater needs a source of fresh air to operate safely and efficiently. 'Crack' a window, if needed.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

With the closing of 1982 and the beginning of a fresh start in 1983, now is a good time to take stock of your family's financial affairs.

Complete a net worth statement. To see how the family's financial situation compares with last year's, it will be helpful to complete a net worth statement. This involves a comparison of assets (what you own) and liabilities (what you owe). List the market value of your possessions, omitting smaller items that you would not be likely to convert to cash. Then list all debts, including installment payments and charge accounts. Your net worth equals your assets, minus your liabilities. Do this every year to see how your family's financial situation is progressing over time.

Check progress on family goals. Think back to the goals you set last year, or to those New Year's resolutions that involved family finances. Did your family achieve these goals during the year? If not, was progress made toward achieving them? Then, set goals for the coming year. Some goals may be continuations of previous goals. What does your family want to accomplish in the coming year? Which goals are most important? How much do you estimate these goals will cost to accomplish?

Analyze last year's spending. It is estimated that about half of American families have some type of budget, formal or informal, that guides their spending. If you have a budget and if you kept records of where your dollars went last year, you are steps ahead already. Compare what was spent last year with what you had planned to spend. Look at where the figures differ. Try to analyze why actual spending was more or less than planned spending.

Plan for 1983 expenses. Think through last year's spending. Did you make purchases last year that were unnecessary, extravagant, or wasteful? Were products and services purchased last year that won't have to be purchased this year? Will any major household, automotive, or lawn and garden items need to be replaced or purchased this coming year? What funds are needed to meet family goals? Using 1982 spending figures as a guide, make necessary adjustments and plan 1983 spending. Then, add an inflation figure of 6 to 8 percent.

Evaluate your emergency fund. Every family should have an emergency fund to take care of unexpected expenses or emergencies. With additional funds (over the emergency fund amount) you may want to consider other investment and savings options that get higher returns.

Review your pension/retirement program. Will your pension or retirement program still be adequate when retirement time rolls around? If not, how can you start a supplement to retirement?

Examine your insurance policies. Is the value of your life insurance coverage going to be adequate for what it was designed to cover? If additional coverage is needed, shop around for ways to supplement your coverage.

Get organized for tax time. Keeping complete, understandable, and organized records may make the difference between money lost or gained at income tax time. Good records can help identify non-taxable sources of income, prevent omissions of deductible expenses, take advantage of capital gain and loss provisions, and prove items reported on income tax returns.

Look at your credit usage. What percentage of your income is committed to debt or loan payments? What will you use credit to purchase in 1983. Can you become debt free, except for mortgage by 1984?

If you want to take your family's financial affairs seriously this year, ask your county home economist for the Form 977, "Net Worth Statement" and Publication 545, "Managing Your Money."

JEFFERSON DAVIS ASSEER

Just over a century ago an aging Jefferson Davis accepted an invitation to speak in Fulton, Missouri, where an estimated 10,000 adulating spectators strained to hear his every word as he championed the cause of American agriculture and discussed the potential of stepped up international trade with close attention to a balance of payments.

The former president of the Confederacy spoke on the state of the economy in the Mississippi Valley in particular and the nation in general, and strangely enough, his main points remain as pertinent to this area and nation after a century has passed as they were then.

Mr. Davis' eloquent address and the circumstances surrounding his visit to Fulton, Missouri, are preserved in a history of Callaway County, Missouri, and through a number of newspaper reports.

Early in his speech he said, "Most gratifying indeed has it been to me, as I travelled through your country (on the train) to see the rapid progress that it has made. It is now about fifty years since this country was in possession of the Indians and the buffalo. Now at every step I see smiling cottages and fruitful fields, and everything which tells of prosperity, of peace, of wealth and happiness."

He championed agriculture as he said, "Your advantages are that you have a fruitful soil; you have a climate that favors the production of whatever the earth will grow, and while you sleep, the elements are at work for you. How, then, can you enter into competition with those who have no fruitful soil, no favoring climate, who are herded together in want and compelled to labor for mere existence?"

Davis went on to describe the substandard lifestyles of many people abroad who were forced into manufacturing for the lack of adequate agricultural resources.

Yet he pointed out the advantages to be had in the Mississippi Valley if more of the products of our soil and forests were processed closer to home to reduce transportation costs.

Eloquently he recognized the value of the Mississippi River in commerce as he said, "We, my friends of the Mississippi Valley, have a joint interest from the mouth of the river to the lake of the woods... (we) are bound together by a tie which time cannot destroy, which rust cannot consume, which the schemes of men cannot divide; it is the tide of cheapest transportation... this mighty giant, the Mississippi... (that) shall hold you together and bind you into one great policy — agricultural, commercial and financial."

Davis said he had been consulted during a trip to London by English financiers and businessmen interested in securing direct trade with the Mississippi Valley. He advised them to establish a regular line of large ships between Liverpool and New Orleans with barges serving every port to tap the agricultural products of this agricultural country at one centrepiece, New Orleans, where they could be put at once upon European bound ships without drayage, storage or other incidental charges.

Next, Davis described the need to better harness the Mississippi River for commerce, to curb flooding of farmlands, and to lessen bank caving and siltation.

He added, "...therefore, I say, you must have a commercial policy which will enable you, instead of hurrying your grain, to send it out at one-fourth the cost it now is, by economizing all the methods as well as transporting it on the sea, and thus put three cents out of every four, now lost to the farmer, back into his pocket. Thus enriched, what are you not capable of doing?"

In his final statements he made a lengthy analysis of the stabilizing influences of a balance of payments between nations. He reminded that the advantage of a currency which is used by the whole world is that such currency cannot be dammed up in any one place.

Strauss guest dinner speaker

Robert S. Strauss, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Special Trade Representative, will be the guest speaker for the 1983 Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner, State Democratic party Chair Danny Cupit announced today.

The dinner will be held on Friday, March 25, in Jackson at the Holiday Inn Downtown, beginning at 7 p.m. The event will be the fourth one since the party began hosting the annual statewide affair in July, 1980.

"The Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner has grown in significance and size since its inception, and we are especially excited to have Ambassador Strauss, highly skilled as a businessman and lawyer and well known for his humanitarian vision, visit the Mississippi party during this important election year."

Strauss served as Chairman of the DNC from 1973 to 1976. In 1977, he entered the Cabinet of President Jimmy Carter as special trade representative. Over the two and one-half years, he successfully concluded the Tokyo Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations, which culminated in the Trade Act of 1979.

Following completion of the trade agreements, President Carter asked Strauss to serve as his personal representative to the Middle East Peace Negotiations. In that capacity, Strauss developed a framework for implementing the provisions for West Bank autonomy contained in the Peace Treaty between Israel and Egypt.

In 1981, Strauss was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award.

Strauss' community, business, and public service activities cover a broad range. Reared in the small West Texas town of Stamford, he served as a special agent for the FBI after taking his law degree from the University of Texas. In January of 1948, he entered private law practice and founded the firm which became Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer and Feld, with offices in Dallas and Washington.

He is presently a director of Xerox Corporation, Archer-Daniels-Midland Corporation, Lone Star Industries, and MCA, Inc.

Tickets to the Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner are $100 per person and can be purchased from County Democratic Chairs, members of the State Democratic Executive Committee, or the State Party office in Jackson.

Library acknowledges Bear Bryant memoriams

Numerous Hancock County fans of Paul (Bear) Bryant have donated to the Hancock County Library System's Remembrance Fund in his memory, according to Prima Wusnack, library director.

"Since the donation was made as a group contribution, we don't have individual names of the donors," said Wusnack. "We are taking this opportunity to let those who contributed to the Remembrance Fund know that we have received an acknowledgement from the family of Mr. Bryant."

The library system's remembrance fund is designed as a way of making gifts to the library as expressions of sympathy in bereavement, as memorials to loved ones and in thanksgiving on birthdays, anniversaries, and similar occasions.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

MORTGAGE PREPAYMENT

QUESTION: My husband and I both work and thus have accumulated a large savings account. We have no trouble making our mortgage payment and in fact are thinking about paying it off so we can own our home free and clear. Any advice? T. B. Jackson

ANSWER: Dear T. B.

If you recently borrowed $70,000 to purchase a house at an interest rate of 17 percent for 30 years, you would pay back a total of almost $360,000 over the next 30 years — over 5 times what you borrowed!

That amounts to almost $290,000 in interest alone. On the surface, then, it would seem crazy not to prepay the loan. However, mortgage prepayment has two sides, and before you act a number of points should be considered.

Obviously, by prepaying the loan you reduce the total payment. Unlike installment loans, mortgages do not require you to pay future interest at the time of prepayment.

The simplest and possibly easiest way to prepay is to periodically apply an extra payment toward reducing the principal. Most lenders will oblige. However, it is best to check with your lender since some mortgages are written with a prepayment penalty.

By prepaying the loan your equity is increasing, which means that if and when you sell your home you have more cash.

However this can, and in today's market may be a disadvantage.

One advantage of a large mortgage is that if it is assumable, a buyer can buy out your equity and assume the loan, perhaps at a favorable interest rate.

If you prepay the loan, the buyer has nothing to assume, or if you have substantially reduced it, most buyers will not have enough cash to buy out your equity. Thus, your home may be less marketable than one with a large mortgage.

Prepaying a mortgage also means you have to come up with the money from somewhere. With today's high money market rates, you may be better off taking the money you were going to use to prepay the loan and investing it in a safe high-yielding money market fund.

In addition, by prepaying you lose the income tax advantage of deducting interest in computing income taxes. As your income increases and you move into a higher tax bracket, this consideration becomes increasingly important.

Also, if you prepay you are paying the lender with today's dollars. Assuming some rate of inflation in the future, dollars that you would pay back today are worth considerably more than dollars that you would pay back two, five, or ten years from now. While an extra per month mortgage may sound steep to you, 10 or 12 years from now such a payment may represent a very small part of your monthly income.

RENTING ADVANTAGES

QUESTION: After an exhaustive search for an affordable house, we have about decided to continue renting. We realize we are giving up the advantages of ownership. Is there anything you can say to help us believe there are advantages to renting? O. B. Oxford

ANSWER: Dear O. B.

Like everyone else, you have read and been told countless times about the advantages of owning instead of renting. However, for countless families like you who cannot afford to buy, do not forget the fact that there are indeed advantages to renting.

First, in uncertain times such as today, renting means freedom from financial risk. While it is hard for many of us to imagine, a house can lose value. Last year home values in many parts of the country actually fell due to no fault of the owners. Another financial risk of home ownership involves what may happen if you are forced to relocate quickly. Some people have discovered how difficult it is to get their money back when it comes time to sell.

More people than you would care to know have moved to another city, yet are still making mortgage payments on their previous homes which remain vacant and unsold.

For those who may have found a buyer, the sale was made only after the seller agreed to finance all or a substantial part of the purchase price, and at an interest rate substantially below what alternative investments such as money market funds are paying.

Second, neighborhood quality can decrease the value of your home if other owners do not keep up their homes or if there's an increase in crime, noise, traffic or other problems.

Appraisers refer to such loss in value as economic obsolescence, which means the value of your property decreases due to forces over which you have no control.

Renting means freedom from a long-term commitment. Typically, mortgage payments extend 25 or 30 years. With today's high interest rates you would need to be somewhat certain you were making a sound investment before making a decision to buy. When you rent, your money is not tied up for a long time, nor is your commitment longer than the term of the lease.

Finally, renters do not have the maintenance problems that owners have. Unlike owners, renters do not have to deal with the costs of money or time on maintenance.

For Answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P. O. Box 295, University, MS 38677.

We've Got a Big Gas Bill, Too

Like you, we've got a big gas bill. Month in, month out. So big we pay out millions.

Why? Because we buy from others the natural gas we deliver to the Gulf South. United Gas doesn't explore, doesn't drill or produce oil or gas. We're a natural gas transmission company, a vital link between the field and our customers.

We're a company in perpetual motion. As old gas fields become exhausted and before, we buy from new fields. We buy for the present and the unknown demands of the future. Unfortunately, the price of natural gas has risen steadily over the last decade. So we have to pay more and ask our customers to pay more.

And as natural gas grows more valuable, the need for conservation grows more imperative. Conserve. The economic future of our region depends on natural gas. What we save today will be needed tomorrow.

The Sea Coast Echo

Book Review

By JOE PILET

There's a dandy little paper back entitled "How to Make News, and Influence People" packed full of helpful suggestions for all persons who handle publicity for their clubs, churches or business establishments.

It was edited by Morgan Harris and Patti Karp, and in a simple and concise manner outlines techniques on how to get free publicity from such news media as TV, radio and newspapers.

With tongue-in-cheek wit the book is dedicated to "the frustrated publicity chairman who wrote:

"Dear Editor: Whenever I send you a news story about the PTA you get it all wrong. Either a whole line is out of place so it doesn't make sense or your typesetter misspells the same words in the printed story that my typewriter misspelled in the copy."

Doesn't he know how to spell? Hasn't he got a dictionary?

Anyway, I've figured out what to do. After this when I send you a story about the PTA please don't print it.

Sincerely, chairman"

The chapter on "style" is especially helpful, gives guidance on punctuation, spelling, when to use numerals and when to spell out the numbers and other puzzling things like that; suggests that weak words be avoided and finds "very" an offender.

What's the difference between "sincere" and "very sincere" for example.

I would strongly recommend that all publicists make the $3.95 investment and procure Tab Book No. 769 - How To Make News and Influence People.

It's everybody's guide book and even makes some good suggestions about personal appearances such as "if you normally wear glasses, use them so you can see the director and floor manager. Avoid heavy makeup and don't wear noisy bracelets or bright metal jewelry."

In broadcasting on TV the book suggests as a guide to write 20 words for each 10 seconds.

Probably one of the best suggestions is a "No, No."

Caution — never put an editor on the spot by insisting that he explain why your story didn't make the paper. The reason is simple. If the editor has two stories of equal interest and only room for one, the one which is poorly written hits the wastepaper basket.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

And a Happy St. Patrick's Day to you! Also a Happy St. Joseph's Day on Saturday... and let's not forget the First Day of Spring — for Spring will be here officially on Sunday!

So, while you're celebrating, and before Spring Fever takes over, why not stir up a batch of Irish Soda Bread... delicious at any time of the year?

One of the greatest treats of Irish cooking is the excellence of the homemade bread, and Irish Soda Bread is considered among the finest kinds of bread in the world, yet it is easy to do, and makes it appearances in castle or cottage without fail at the high tea or "tay" which constitutes the evening meal.

A good housewife in Ireland would feel disgraced if she offered a visitor fewer than three or four different types of her home-baked breads, as well as with a couple or three of fresh-from-the-oven cakes along with a "cuppa" — at least, according to a note a great-great (I forget how many more greats) aunt wrote in the margin of a "receipt" for the bread long ago.

My family version is the traditional Irish Soda Bread, which I like sliced thin and served with butter at tea time — or any other time; other cooks prefer a slightly different version, with raisins, and some use currants — anyway, it's good. Here's DALY'S IRISH SODA BREAD

4 cups all purpose flour
1 Tbsp. butter (or margarine these days)

1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda
1 cup buttermilk

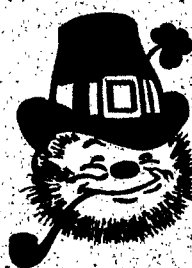

Rub the butter into the flour, then add the salt and soda, mix it all well together by running the dry ingredients through your fingers.

Add the buttermilk, and stir into a soft dough with a wooden spoon. With floured hands knead lightly into a ball and turn out on a thickly floured baking sheet.

Flatten the dough into a circle about an inch and a half thick, using the palm of your hand. With a floured knife make a cross in the center, so that it won't crack in baking; brush with milk and bake at 425 degrees 30 or 40 minutes... or until it sounds hollow when tapped... and serve with almost anything.

Traditionally, this was baked in a skillet, but you may use almost any round or flat pan, preferably one well-drained through use.

Also, traditionally, long ago, this was made with fresh-milled flour, freshly churned buttermilk, over a brisk turf fire, and in the "bastable oven" — a heavy, heavy, three-legged black iron pot which was used at hearth-side and also over the fire, depending upon what was being cooked.

For a sweeter soda bread, you may mix a half cup or a bit more of raisins or tablespoons, no more. Whatever you do — try it!

P.S. The amount of buttermilk needed will vary with the humidity, as on damp days the flour absorbs moisture from the atmosphere, so less is needed in the dough. Start with a little less, and add as you need, to make a rather firm, yet not stiff dough.

Prep baseball roundup

Three area teams in HNC tourney

Three of the four area high school baseball teams will be competing in the Hancock North Central Invitational March 18 and 19.

The HNC Hawks open their baseball season with the tournament, that begins at 3 p.m. Friday, with HNC, Bay High and St. Stanislaus among the entrants.

In prep baseball action the past week, St. Stanislaus evened its season record at 3-3, by splitting four ball games.

The Rocks dropped an 0-4 decision to Biloxi and an 0-8 encounter with Stone, and defeated Pope John Paul of Slidell 12-1 and East Central 15-2.

Bay High raised its record to 2-1 by splitting a pair of games, defeating Poplarville 12-5 and losing to St. John of Gulfport 6-9.

Pass Christian High School lost three games the past week to see its season record fall to 0-4.

The Pirates dropped a pair of games to St. Martin of Biloxi 12-13 and 11-13 and then lost to Harrison Central by a count of 5-13.

Bay High pitcher Jeffrey Smith continued to shine at both the plate and on the mound, pitching the win over Poplarville for his second victory in as many decisions.

Smith and shortstop Robert Whavers are the leading hitters for the team after three games.

Catcher Jamie Jenkins and centerfielder Richard Dedeaux are the leading hitters for Pass Christian after four games.

St. Stanislaus has been led at the plate by a bevy of hitters, including Gus Aime, Chris Darling, Joby LaBuzza and Casey Wittman.

Aime has been the pitching hero for the Rocks after six games this season.

In the game against Pope John Paul, the Rocks needed only six innings to score 12 runs and take an easy victory.

In the first inning, Wittman doubled home Aime and Darling who had both reached base on a fielders choice.

In the second inning, Mark Logan doubled and scored on an error.

Four runs came across in the third, as Donald Pitalo and John Henry opened the inning with walks and Logan collected his second double of the game.

Robert Peranich then got aboard on an error and eventually scored the fourth run of the inning.

Four more runs came across in the fourth inning, as Pitalo doubled, Henry walked, Logan got aboard on an error, Piranich walked, and errors allowed them to score.

Correction

Bay Area Soccer Club action reported in the Feb. 3 'Sea Coast Echo' inadvertently attributed a goal scored by The Sea Coast Echo Panthers to the wrong player. The goal was scored by Jenie Carver in the Panther's 1-0 win over South Mississippi Soccer Club of Gulfport.

THE FISHIN' HOLE

By BREARD SNELLINGS

Warm days the past week brought out the shoreline, pier and bridge fishermen but they found sparse catches.

The first fish are just beginning to find their way inshore after spending the winter in deep, offshore waters.

A few small (5-7 inch) croakers and silver perch are inside, along with some flounders and small channel mullet. Even the pinfish haven't arrived in numbers as yet.

Your best bet for a good catch this coming week is on drum fish.

Drumfish don't seem to be as affected by cold water as other fish, and it always takes the water temperature a month or so longer to catch up with the air temperature.

Fishermen on the long, Ulman pier in Bay St. Louis have hung a few drum ranging from five to 15 pounds the last month, and a couple of big sting rays have been caught off that pier.

The Ulman pier is one of the few public piers still standing along the Bay-Waveland Gulf Coast after the destructive storm of January 20.

The American Legion Pier at the end of Washington Avenue is down, but plans are underway to repair the T at the end of the rock jetty.

The American Legion pier is the most popular along the Bay-Waveland waterfront.

The Bayou Cadet wharf is also down, as is the Dunbar Street fishing pier. I know of no plans to fix these as yet.

A few small drum and croakers are being caught from the bridges over the bayous in DeLisle, along with some bream, or perch.

Best bait for large drum is a piece of fresh crab.

Just take a whole crab and break it into three or four pieces, putting the shell and meat both on the hook for bait. You need about a four ounce hook and some lead for this.

Shrimp is still the most popular bottom fishing bait, and most of the seafood markets carry frozen shrimp, put in their deep-freezers last fall.

Cut bait is also popular, and successful for catching flounder, large croakers and channel mullet.

Flounders prefer cut bait or cacha minnows, but minnows are hard to find in the marshes back of the bay at this time of year.

Not many boat fishermen are fishing the bay as yet, and once they do, we'll let you know what they're catching.

But if you want flounder, you'll do best with cacha minnows as bait.

The water levels are still high in the marshes, and this spreads the baitfish around, making them hard to find and catch.

Water is still high in the Pearl River Basin, but is falling and fishing may be good in that area within a couple of weeks.

River fishing is good for channel and blue catfish, the freshwater kind, and these are delicious eating.

Best catfish baits are crawfish, cut perch or chicken livers.

You should fish deep water for catfish, trying to locate holes in the rivers. Running water is also a good place to find them.

White perch (crappie) fishing is good in the Pearl River by cuts and moving water, but it's still too early for bream fishing.

Bass fishing is slow.

Not many fishermen are going to the islands or Louisiana marshes for trout and redfish in cold, windy weather, but once things settle down, we should be getting some news on this type of fishing.

Fish and Wildlife names new director

A new director of the Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife and a director of administration were announced this week by Department of Wildlife Conservation executive director Lon Strong.

John H. Phares, 59, of Jackson was named as director of administration. Phares, a 32-year veteran with the wildlife department, will coordinate and supervise the activities of payroll, purchasing, data processing, personnel, printing, public relations, motor pool, vehicles, and maintenance.

Before becoming director of administration, Phares had been chief of the agency's game division and coordinator of the federally funded Pittman-Robertson program since 1968.

Lewis Bays, 59, of Cleveland is the department's new director of the Bureau of Fisheries and Wildlife. Since beginning work with the agency in 1953, Bays has served as a waterfowl biologist and wildlife biologist.

He was state representative to the technical section of the Mississippi Flyway for some 15 years. He was secretary of the Council in 1975. In 1972 he received the Conservationist of the Year award from the Mississippi Wildlife Federation.

BOW HUNTING TROPHY—Uless Bergeron of Fenton, hunting recently with the C & G Archery Club of Biloxi on a range near Laredo, Tex., bagged this 38 pound javelina or wild boar.

Bergeron's javelina was the outstanding bag of the four-day bow hunting expedition in which nine members of the Biloxi club participated.

USM program debates NCAA Rule No. 48

The spring semester Inquiry and Advocacy Program at the University of Southern Mississippi will deal with NCAA Rule No. 48.

Inquiry and Advocacy is a debate held at USM each semester on some pertinent and timely topic. At 4 p.m., March 24 in rooms A, B, C, University Commons, the students and invited guests will debate the following resolution: "The 700 SAT/15 ACT eligibility requirement should be deleted from NCAA Rule No. 48."

Resource people will include: Dr. Robert Harrison, president of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning; Dr. Norman Francis, president of Xavier University in New Orleans, president of United Negro College Fund, and vice president of Educational Testing Service; Lee Hildman, assistant professor of psychology at USM and specialist in non-discriminatory testing; Roland Dale, USM athletic director; and Dr. Sidney Weatherford, chairman of the USM athletic committee. Dale and Weatherford were representatives to the NCAA convention.

Founded in 1979, the Speech Communication Department's Inquiry and Advocacy Program is a co-curricular, on-campus, audience-centered debate program. Its purpose is to provide the university community and general public a forum for open discussion and debate of current, significant, and controversial issues. Inquiry and Advocacy's goal is educational: to prepare students to produce and consume public discourse critically. By analyzing both sides of issues, students will better recognize the complexity, difficulty, and importance of decision-making via public discussion and debate. The program's unique feature is the participation of public leaders directly involved in the issue. This spring we are fortunate to have an athletic director, college board president, university president, and psychologist participating. Each resource person brings a unique perspective on the difficult and crucial decisions regarding academic eligibility requirements for student athletes. We welcome you and hope you benefit from this program.

Rules of Conduct—All participants are expected to conduct themselves in a civilized, polite, and rational manner.

Audience Members—May change sides of the house at any time to reflect their opinion. They may rise, come to the microphone, be recognized by moderator, and ask two questions during questioning periods.

Rules of Evidence—Participants are encouraged to call attention to unsupported assertions and faulty reasoning.

Rules of Decision-Making—At the outset, audience members vote on the proposition and sit on the appropriate side of the house. At the conclusion of debate, audience members will again vote on the proposition and exit by the door that reflects their vote.

Soccer club season winding down

As the final weeks of the regular season in the Bay Area Soccer Club draw to a close, some important games still remain to be played.

In the Under 8 Division at 10 a.m. Coca Cola needs a victory over the Firebirds to keep their playdown hopes alive.

At 11:30 a.m. the Purple Knights and the Bears, having played to a 1-1 tie in the season opener in November, play for the Division lead.

Both teams are undefeated, with the Purple Knights already having clinched a playdown berth. But a loss by the Bears coupled with wins by Coca Cola in their last two games could knock the Bears out of the playdown picture, the final determination being based on a goals against basis.

In the Under 10 Division Little Italy and Lokaano's have clinched playdown berths. At 10 a.m. Stark's Restaurant plays Hancock General Hospital, while at 11:30 a.m. Little Italy plays McDonald Realty.

In the Under 12 Division Dr. Murphree DDS needs one win in their last two games to stay ahead of Hale Homes to secure a playdown berth, while Mary Carter Paints has already nailed down a berth.

At 10 a.m. Dr. Murphree DDS takes on the Strikers, who played them to a 2-2 tie in January, in search of that clinching victory.

At 11:30 a.m. Ocean Springs (girls) will be hosted by the Sea Coast Echo "Panthers", and at 1 p.m. Mary Carter Paints plays the Golden Eagles to clinch their first place position in the division.

In the Under 14 Division at 10 a.m. the Scrappers play division winner Gulf Coast Waste as both teams tune up for the playdowns. At 11:30 a.m. Bay-Waveland Tire hosts Piquette, at 1 p.m. Homes of the South hosts SMSC, and at 2:30 p.m. the Sports World "Giants" host Ocean Springs (girls).

On Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Under 12 Division Farm Bureau, Kiln and the Golden Eagles will make up a game from January.

Last Sunday the adults played Homes of the South, and then Gulf Coast Waste hosted SMSC. The results were a 3-1 victory for Homes of the South, the goals being scored on two penalty kicks and a breakaway, and a 3-1 win for visiting SMSC which dominated the game. It was a beautiful day for soccer, and fine soccer was played by all.

The adults "Bay Rats" will meet regularly each Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. to play either visitors or among themselves.

Volleyball players needed

Women aged 18 and over who are interested in playing volleyball on Sunday afternoons should call Kay Karl at 467-7945.

Gulf Islands camping fee raised

Fees for the use of the Ocean Springs campgrounds within Gulf Islands National Seashore will increase effective March 21.

The new rates will be $8 per campsite per night for sites without electrical hookups and $10 for sites with electricity. This increase is based upon a survey of private and public campgrounds with similar facilities conducted last year in the vicinity of the two campgrounds.

It is National Park Service policy to operate its campgrounds at rates which are comparable to those in the surrounding areas.

The Gulf Islands campgrounds is located in the Davis Bayou area, in Ocean Springs, and offers campsites with paved parking pads, picnic tables, charcoal grills, and water hookups. Restrooms, including showers, are centrally located and each campground has a dumping station for disposal of sewage from recreational vehicles.

All 51 of the campsites at Davis Bayou have electrical hookups. Reservations are not available, so competition for the first-come, first served sites is keen throughout much of the year, particularly during the holiday periods.

Campground fees are deposited in the Land and Water Conservation Fund, a federal program set up in 1964 to provide additional outdoor recreation opportunities throughout the nation, through land acquisition and other programs.

Revenues from surplus property sales, motorboat fuel taxes, and leasing of drilling rights on the Outer Continental Shelf also are placed in the Fund.

A proposal has been made to return at least a portion of the revenue realized from camping and other federal recreation fees to the collecting agencies so that this can be used to defray the cost of operating recreational facilities.

At present, these facilities are supported only by each agency's general appropriations.

USM basketball finishes at 14-14

Southern Mississippi's 1982-83 basketball season came to an end last Friday evening when the Golden Eagles were eliminated 79-68 by Virginia Tech in the opening round of the Metro Conference Championships in Cincinnati. USM ended the season with a 14-14 record, its fourth straight non-winning season and its fifth in seven seasons under coach M.K. Turk.

During the course of the season the Eagles played 14 games against teams that will be playing in either the NCAA or NIT tournaments. NCAA tournament teams faced by the Eagles included Arkansas, Memphis State, Virginia Commonwealth, Louisville and Southwestern Louisiana, while Eagle foes Tulane, Virginia Tech, New Orleans and East Tennessee State will play in the NIT.

Junior guard Curtis Green finished as USM's leading scorer, averaging 16.7 points per game to rank fourth in the Metro Conference. Green, who was named second team all-conference, placed the squad in steals (58) and minutes played (1016) and finished second in free throw percentage (78.7) and assists (93).

Senior center Carl Mitchell ranked second on the club in scoring with a 12.6 average and led the team in rebounding with 7.1 caroms per game. Sophomore forward James Williams was third in scoring (9.6), while senior guard Larry Boyd was fourth (9.1).

Mitchell, Boyd and forwards-

Willie Robinson and Kenny Dailey all finished their careers with the Golden Eagles and, according to head coach M.K. Turk, had "a great deal to do with the successes we have enjoyed the past few years."

Turk said he felt the Eagles had a "rewarding year" because, in his words, "we were able to bounce back from several setbacks in January to win seven of our last 11 games and still have a good season."

The Eagles recorded victories over Northeast Louisiana; Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Furman and Clemson to capture the IPTAY Tournament Championship, Tulane (2), Indiana-Southeast, Pan American (2), North Carolina Charlotte, Cincinnati, Western Illinois (2) and East Tennessee State.

USM lost to Mississippi State, Arkansas, Memphis State, Virginia Tech (3), Florida State (2), Virginia Commonwealth, Louisville, New Orleans (2), and Southwestern Louisiana (2).

Tim Rayner leads St. Stanislaus to prestigious academic victory

St. Stanislaus High School took first place in the first TEAMS competition in Mississippi.

Gulfport High School placed second and Bay High School placed third in a field of eight southern Mississippi high schools that also included Biloxi High.

Seventy-eight students competed in the March 1, event held at the Gulf Park Campus of USM in Long Beach.

TEAMS stands for Test of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics, and Science. The test covers physics, mathematics, chemistry, biology, English, and engineering calculations.

Each student is tested in one or two subjects and compete for individual awards in each subject.

Individual scores were combined to give a team score that determined how each high school placed. These regional winners will be screened for a national competition to be held later this year.

The TEAMS competition was sponsored by the JETS (Junior Engineering Technical Society) and the Gulf Coast Branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers to encourage better science education at the high school level.

JETS is an organization of high school students interested in science and engineering careers.

Tim Rayner of St. Stanislaus compiled an outstanding record. He won first place in the physics test and the mathematics test, a feat that was unrivaled.

Gary Schott placed first in engineering calculations. Tom Helm placed first in biology giving St. Stanislaus four of six first place prizes. Mike

FIRST PLACE HONORS—James Bowie, second from right, president of Gulf Coast Chapter, American Society of Civil Engineers, presents first place team trophy to Tim Rayner of St. Stanislaus for the school's winning effort in a recent Test of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics and Science competition among eight south Mississippi high schools which was sponsored by the chapter. Rayner was also cited for an outstanding performance in scoring first in both physics and mathematics tests, the only competitor to win two firsts. The Stanislaus team includes, from left, Jim Thriffliey, SSC science coordinator and team coach; Nathan Champagne, Jack Kent, Steve Colson, Kent Weidie, Rayner, Gary Schott, first place winner in engineering calculations; Keith Mallini; Peter Merrifield; and Tom Helm, first place winner in biology. Not pictured is Mike Doyle, second place winner in biology.

Doyle placed second in biology. Their teammates included Steve Colson, Jack Kent, Keith Mallini, Peter Merrifield, Ed Dunn and Kent Weidie.

Jim Thriffliey, the science faculty coordinator at St. Stanislaus, coached the team to victory.

The strong second place Gulfport team was led by Ricky Graves, first in English, Billy Carr, second in math, Richard Smith, second in chemistry, Matt Carlson, third in physics, Karen Ownbey, third in engineering calculations, and Laurie Pruitt, third in biology.

Their team was rounded out by Rex Banks, Terry Bowen, Greg Kemp, Mike Lopez, Ed Luke, and Brian Phenix. Sarah Myrick, a math and physics teacher, was the team coach.

Bay High School, finishing third, was paced by Stephanie Power, first in chemistry, and Derek Wright, second in engineering calculations. Teammates were George Paul, Russell Smith, Craig Orgeron, Mary Langenbacker, Michael Trenchard, and Dana Favre.

Science teacher Evelyn Timidalski coached the team. The Biloxi High School team included Scott Brown, Gordon Sun, David Jordan, Mike Marryott, Robert Stewart, Huy Dang, Steve Pace, Michelle Parameter, Todd Yarbber, Ronald Toms, and Robert Stoebe. Teacher Alice Victory of Biloxi High coached the team.

Jim Bowie, the local American Society of Civil Engineers Branch president who presided at the awards ceremony, referred to each participant as a winner.

"The participation was a reward in itself. The achievements made here could be directly attributable to the efforts of the high school science teachers who are generally underpaid and receive little recognition, but who, continue to motivate and train tomorrow's scientists and engineers," he said.

Thriffliey, Ms. Timidalski, Ms. Myrick and Ms. Victory are just a few of the more active local teachers who are seeing that our future remains bright," Bowie added.

ENGINEERING AWARD—Derek Wright of Bay High School receives second place award in engineering calculations from Vito Latkovich of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

CHEMISTRY WINNER—Stephanie Power of Bay High School receives first place award in chemistry from Bill Kaehle of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

BIOLOGY AWARD—Mike Doyle of St. Stanislaus High School receives second place award in biology from Dr. Ron Rathbun of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

If you're picky, you'll love the Produce Patch. Because WINN-DIXIE produce experts are very selective. They judge produce by color, texture and firmness. But many times, taste is the most important test for selecting nature's best. And our produce experts are connoisseurs of fine fruits and vegetables. Selective? You bet. Because we know you're picky. We wouldn't want it any other way. Harvest Fresh from

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.
Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION—A study in St. Louis County found several "distinctions" between youths who have not used alcohol or other drugs and those who have. Which of these reasons for abstinence were given by the highest percentage of nonusers?

- Strong religious values.
- Close friends are abstainers.
- Extracurricular activities.
- Family help with problems.

ANSWER—Nonusers are less tempted to try drugs or alcohol. More than 80% of nonusers said their friends also were abstainers. By 2 to 1, nonusers have strong religious values and have found religion to be helpful in solving their problems.

By the same margin (2 to 1), nonusers tend to participate more in school activities, music, hobbies, clubs, etc. Also, 60% of nonusers reported that their families helped them with problems. Correct answer - b.

QUESTION—Common over-the-counter medications may contain alcohol ranging by volume from 0.5 to 68 percent. A recent survey by the University of Texas pharmacy department revealed how many drugs containing some alcohol?

- 1,000
- 500
- 100
- 50

ANSWER—More than 500 drugs contain some alcohol. One popular anti-cold potion contains .25% alcohol, the equivalent of a 50-proof alcohol beverage. The recommended daily dosages of many geriatric tonics provide the users with the same amount of alcohol found in 4½ ounces of wine. Quince-for-ounce many medications are stronger than cocktails. Valerian, a compound sometimes prescribed for mild cases of nervousness and hysteria, contains 68% alcohol, equivalent to 136-proof. Correct answer - b.

QUESTION—Of the 11 million alcoholics in the United States, how many are young people below age 18?

- ½ million
- 1 million
- 2 million
- 3 million

ANSWER—An estimated 3.3 million problem drinkers are young people aged 14-17. That is 19% of this age group. Correct answer - d.

For further information about alcohol and drug abuse write: Dr. Paul G. Jones, II, Executive Director, Christian Action Commission, P.O. Box 530, Jackson, MS 39205.

POINT OF LAW

Mississippi State Bar

Q: Does a bank have a right to pay a check from a customer's account even if the payment causes the account to be overdrawn?

A: Yes. Although a bank certainly is not required to pay a check if the customer's account lacks sufficient funds to cover it, the bank may pay the check if it chooses to do so. Then, when the customer deposits additional funds in the account, the bank may apply those additional funds to cover the overdraft.

Q: Does a bank have the right to take funds from its customer's account to pay a debt that the customer owes the bank?

A: If a person is indebted to a bank, and the debt is due and unpaid, the bank generally has the right to "set-off" any accounts that the person might have with the bank.

That is, the bank may take funds from the customer's checking account to apply to the debt. However, there are certain funds which may not be set-off by a bank. If a customer's account contains funds from social security checks, supplemental security income checks, or veteran's benefits checks, the bank may not take those funds to apply to its customer's debt.

Emergency techs to conduct national meet in Biloxi

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum will be the site of the 1983 National Educational Conference of the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians on April 28, 29, 30, and May 1.

The conference will provide an opportunity for emergency medical personnel from the local area and nearby states to receive instruction in the latest techniques of emergency care from nationally known and highly qualified staff, according to Becky Farnham, project director, Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services District, who is also conference chairman.

Sponsored by the national Association of Emergency Medical Technicians, Mississippi Emergency Medical Technicians Association, and MGCEMS District, the conference will feature more than 60 workshops.

Classes in marine rescue, diving accidents, hyperbaric EMS, repelling and extricating will be of special interest to EMS personnel in the Gulf Coast states, according to Steve Delahousey, local program chairman and Eddie Stipe, Boulder, Colo., national program chairman.

A mock trial of an EMT, one of the highlights of the 1982 Conference in Boston, will be conducted. Jim Page, editor of "JEMS-Journal of Emergency Medical Services," will act as the prosecutor.

Other special features will be a MAST trouser workshop, and a program on the role of civilian EMS in wartime presented by a Pentagon official.

Tracks for EMT-A's, intermediates and Paramedics, training coordinators, administrators, fire/rescue and military personnel will be offered.

ETV Briefs

MUSIC OF 30s & 40s

"Jukebox Saturday Night," a three-hour music spectacular hosted by Eddie Albert, will be telecast at 7 p.m., Saturday, March 19, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Among the guests celebrating the music of the 1930s and '40s are Margaret Whiting, Herb Jeffries, Helen O'Connell, Betty Hutton, Bob Crosby and the Bob Cats, and Bea Wain.

The program is staged on an elaborate set accentuated with a display of priceless art deco jukeboxes—the instruments through which many Americans were introduced to these performers before and during World War II.

MARK BROTHERS

"The Marx Brothers in a Nutshell," a two-hour salute to one of the most celebrated comedy teams in the history of motion pictures, will be rebroadcast at 8:30 p.m., Thursday, March 17, on the Mississippi ETV Network. The program was first seen last year.

The program recalls the early days of their careers when they performed on the vaudeville stage. They later became an "overnight" success on Broadway and then moved on to perform in film after film. Still later, television brought them into American homes in programs that included Groucho's long-running game show series, "You Bet Your Life."

Flea has a lot to do in two-month life span

Fleas are a group of insects common to the entire world, but one reassuring fact is that Mississippi's most common flea is the cat flea, and cat fleas will not live on humans.

Dr. Pat Harris, area pest management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said homes may easily become infested with fleas when pets are present.

Even though the flea's life processes may be slowed during the cold winter months, they continue their activity and reproduction throughout the winter, ready to flourish when warm weather returns.

Harris said the adult form of the flea is the only form most of us see, but that the "puny" pupa pass through several stages of development.

"The female lays tiny, white, oval eggs in the dust, dirt or bedding of the host animal, or loosely on the hairs of the animal. The eggs are not glued to the hair, like a louse egg, and they will usually sift through the hair and on to the ground or into the animal's bedding," Harris said.

Eggs hatch anywhere from two days to two weeks later and white, worm-like larva appear. The larva have chewing mouth parts and will feed on a variety of organic material such as shed hair, particles of dead animal or vegetable matter, or the leavings of the animals.

After a week to a month or so, the larva spins cocoons and begins to molt. Five days to two weeks later the adult flea emerges. In rare instances the molting stage can last as long as two years. Generally, however, a flea's entire life lasts only two months.

"When the adult flea emerges it is out for blood, literally," Harris said. "The adult flea must feed on blood in order to reproduce. And this is when they become a nuisance to people."

Extension Entomologist Dr. Doug Gaydon explained why a cat or dog flea becomes a pest to humans.

"The flea wants a blood meal, and if the host animal is not present, the flea will hop on the next animal to pass, even a human," Gaydon said.

Fleas will bite people, even cat and dog fleas, but only a human flea will stay on a human. The various species of fleas have a natural preference for a specific type of animal, and human fleas are not common in Mississippi, Gaydon said.

Gaydon also said fleas in Mississippi are not associated with diseases in humans.

"Your chances of getting struck by lightning three times on the same day are better than your chances of getting bitten by a flea," Harris said.

"They will hop on you and they will bite you, but they are not known to be disease carriers in this area."

Effective control of fleas does not end with treating the animal. Sleeping areas, bedding and other areas frequented by the animal should be treated at the same time the animal is treated. Otherwise the animal will just become reinfested, Harris said.

Information on animal and home flea control can be obtained from any County Extension Office.
